Petroleum Investment Strategy

Contributing to the long term stability and security of New Zealand's energy's supply is a key objective for effectively managing the Crown mineral estate. New Zealand needs to attract more investors and explorers with the capability and capacity for aggressive large scale petroleum exploration in frontier basins over the next few years. Our Petroleum Investment Strategy outlines the key steps towards achieving this.

Minerals Investment Strategy

New Zealand's mineral estate is a significant national asset with the potential to make a large and long-term contribution to our economic well-being. We need to attract more investors and explorers with the capability and capacity for large scale minerals and coal exploration in regions with the highest exploration potential and lowest environmental barriers to entry. The Minerals Investment Strategy outlines the key steps towards achieving this.
